And this is all a liberal course allows;
Who cannot keep his wealth, must keep his house[5].

[Exit.

SCENE IV.

The same. A Hall in TIMON'S House.

*Enter Two Servants of FARRO, and the Servant of Lucius^ meeting TITUS, HORTENSIUS, and other Secants to TIMON'S Creditors, waiting his coming out

» SERV. Well met; good-morrow, Titus and Hortensius.
. The like to you, kind Varro.
HOR. Lucius ?
What, do we meet together ?
Luc. SERV. Ay, and, I think*
One business does command us all; for mine Is money.
TIT. So is theirs and ours.

*Enter PHILOTUS

Luc. SERP| And sir Philotus too!
PHI. Good day at once.
Luc. SERF. Welcome, good brother.
What do you think the hour ?
PHI. Labouring for nine.
Luc. SERF. So much ?
Is not my lord seen yet ?

s —keep his house.] I. e, keep within doors for fear of duns.

JOHNSON.

So, in Measure for Measure, Act III. Sc. II.: " You will turn good husband now, Pompey; you will keep the house"

STEEVENS.